QUESTIONS TO ASK YOUR GP OR UROLOGIST

It's all about asking the right questions concerning your male urinary incontinence.

If you think you or someone you know may be suffering from urinary incontinence, here are some helpful questions you need to ask your GP or urologist which may help determine the right treatment option:

- Is my urinary incontinence related to a treatable medical condition, will the symptoms resolve with the successful treatment of an underlying disorder?
- What are my chances of my bladder leakage resolving without any treatment options?
- What types of surgical and non-surgical treatment options are available?
- How effective are they?
- What are the advantages and disadvantages of each of these treatment options?
- What type of treatment do you recommend for me? Why?
- If this treatment is not successful, what other options might you recommend?
